Kyle Kravitz, the creator behind King of the Kards, is one of the largest and most influential voices in the sports card content space. Known for his sharp insights and highly engaging storytelling, Kyle has built a massive following across YouTube, Instagram, and TikTok, helping shape conversations around the hobby for a new generation of collectors.

Jay Moslehi, the face of MOJO Sports, is one of the hobby's most established and trusted creators. As one of the longest-tenured voices in the space, Jay has built a massive YouTube audience and a reputation for authenticity, consistency, and deep passion for the hobby.

Blak Grice, known as Blakedown, is the official kid creator of the Sport Card Expo. Passionate, authentic, and always collecting, Blake inspires the next generation of hobbyists and shows the future of the hobby is in great hands.

Jeremy Lee, host of Sports Cards Live, is one of the hobby's most respected interviewers and live content creators. Known for thoughtful conversations with top collectors, dealers, and industry voices, he brings depth and credibility to every discussion.

Dr. James Beckett is one of the most influential figures in the history of the sports card hobby. As the founder of Beckett Publications, he helped define how collectors understand value, grading, and the marketplace.

Doctor Collectible is one of the hobby's most dynamic and entertaining content creators, known for high-energy pack breaks, engaging storytelling, and a strong connection with collectors around the world. His content blends passion, personality, and authenticity, making him a standout voice in the sports card community.

Josh Madigan is a leading voice in the hockey card world and co-host of the Hockey Cards Gongshow—widely regarded as the largest and most respected hockey card podcast in the hobby. With a focus on market dynamics, collector mindset, and the stories behind the cards, Josh brings a thoughtful, grounded perspective that resonates across the community.

Chantel, known online as BabyBaconator, is a Toronto-based Pokémon and League of Legends creator bringing a unique and entertaining voice to the hobby. Best known for her spot-on voice impressions, Cantonese pack rips, and honest product reviews, she's built a fast-growing and highly engaged following across the community.
